Scott Electric

Protect yourself from Future Liability

Mercury, lead and PCB's are harmful to human health and the environment. For that reason, fluorescent lamps containing PCB's are regulated by the EPA. Improper disposal of mercury waste can lead to regulatory action, fines and future Superfund liability.

Scott Electric RECYCLING PROGRAM offers —

- Environmentally secure handling of fluorescent lamps.
- Mercury captured, recovered, then distilled, while the uncontaminated components - glass, aluminum and phosphorous powder are reclaimed. The PCB Meg Rule makes the disposal of ballasts even more stringent.
- PCB components segregated for disposal at an EPA-approved facility, while the reclaimed steel, aluminum and copper components are tested and recycled.
- EPA Permits: Commercial Storage of PCB'S, Alternate Disposal Method Approved.
- $10 million in General Liability Insurance (Aggregate); $5 million in Pollution Liability Insurance.

No Freight or Handling Charges

COMPETITIVE PRICING - Ask your Scott Electric Salesman for a free, no-obligation quote.

Certificates of Recycling are issued for all recycled material.
